Subic, Clark execs highest paid gov't men

By Leila B. Salaverria

IT'S NOT ONLY the officers of the Metropolitan Magistrates and Sheriff's Offices (MMSO) who are enjoying sky-high perks and bonuses from the government.

In 2009, the government officials who received the most in salaries, allowances and "extraordinary and miscellaneous fees" came from—besides the MMSO—the Subic Bay Metropolitan Authority (SBMA), the Clark Development Corp. (CDC), the Development Bank of the Philippines (DBP), the League of Cities of the Philippines (LCAP), the State Government and Development Authority (SGDA), Social Security System (SSS), and Land Bank of the Philippines (LBP). # Luisita agreement signed

Deal needs SC okay; President hands off

By Jo Martinez-Clements, Inquirer General Issues, Philip C. Tabasa and Kristine L. Alave

HACIENDA LUISITA, Tarlac—A compromise agreement seeking to end the 20-year-old dispute between the owners and farm workers of Hacienda Luisita was signed here yesterday before an assembly of 800 people.

A major feature of the deal is a provision that will allow the farmers who are legal reform beneficiaries to choose between owning shares of stock in the corporation or taking possession of a piece of Hacienda land. (See details of agreement on Page A4.)

President Aquino, chief operating officer of the Hacienda Luisita Inc. (HLI), told the assembly that the agreement will give Luisita stakeholders a fresh start.

The compromise deal was hammered out between Cojuangcos and Vigor Mendez, HLI's CEO.

TWO OPTIONS Hacienda Luisita farmers line up to immediately—before voting at the clubhouse of Hacienda Luisita in Tarlac. They were given two options: Choose between owning shares of stock in the corporation or taking possession of a piece of Hacienda land. The farmers will be holding a referendum this weekend. ## 'Cojuangcos don't want to let go of the land'

By Philip C. Tabasa

IT'S A WORLD turned upside down.

This was how lawyer Christian Monod, a member of the Constitutional Commission that drafted the 1987 Constitution, reacted to the reported compromise deal that was reached between the farm workers and management of Hacienda Luisita, the 6,300-hectare sugar plantation in Central Luzon owned by the Cojuangco family of President Aquino.

"The bottom line is that the Cojuangcos do not want to let go of the land," said Monod, who was himself helping to broker a deal between Hacienda Luisita Inc. and the farmers, with the backing of the Catholic Bishops' Conference of the Philippines.

"The deal still centers to the 'spirit and spirit' of the 1987 Constitution which declares that agrarian reform lands should go to the farmers while landowners get just compensation in form of shares," he said.

"Now, it's a world turned upside down with the landowners getting the land and farmers getting the compensation. If you have economic and political power concentrated, you can turn the world on its head," he said.

Cojuangcos do not want to let go of the land, according to Monod.

Suicide bombing ruled out

By Julie Alpila and Jeffrey Maitres, Inquirer Mindanao

ZAMBOANGA CITY—The explosion outside the arrival area of the international airport here early Thursday night was not a suicide bomb attack, police authorities said yesterday.

The explosion, which killed two people and wounded 24 others, including Sulu Gov. Abdurrahman Taw and a Briton who is a longtime Zamboanga resident, had prompted US Ambassador Harry Thomas Jr. to cancel his scheduled trip to the city.

Lights out: Meralco rates rising this month

By Arny R. Ibanez

CUSTOMERS of power distribution Manila Electric Co. should brace for higher bills, after the cost of electricity it purchases from power firms increased this month.

In a disclosure to the Phil-pine Stock Exchange, Meralco explained that its generation charge rose by 44 centavos per kilowatt-hour (kWh) to P5.962 per kWh, driven mainly by higher prices at the Wholesale Electricity Spot Market (WESM).

Energy Secretary Jose Alvarado

D. Alvarado said in a briefing yesterday that he has already asked the operator of WESM, the Philippine Electricity Market Corp. (PEMCO), to provide the government details as to why the price of power being traded had spiked that up.

File charges, De Lima dares ex-Lacson aide

By Helen Diaz

JUSTICE SECRETARY Jovito Saldaña dares former police officer Genito Dandan to file criminal complaints against the state prosecutors he has accused of covering him to suppress negative news. Dandan is the twice-convicted double murder case.

Instead of just airing his allegations in the media, Dandan should file an appropriate complaint or sworn statement so the prosecutors can be asked to respond formally, she said.

De Lima said something with the prosecutors handling the double murder case, including state prosecutor Haniel Haddad whom Dandan accused of allegedly forcing him to compromise Lacson in the case.

She said the prosecutors have denied Dandan's allegations and showed her the list of questions and answers that Lacson usually prepares for a trial, which she said Dandan must be referring to when he said he was given a script.

"I learned where it and I didn't (said) anything when he was being made to compromise Lacson... There was nothing of that sort," De Lima said.

The justice secretary said she would not protect the prosecutors if they are found to have engaged in any wrongdoing.

But those attacking them have to be fair by filing the appropriate complaints, she said.

While not expecting that she believed that Dandan's complaints against her were an "insult" perception.

Court convicts 13 Viet poachers

A COURT in Puerto Princesa has found and sentenced 13 Vietnamese poachers to two and a half years in prison after they were caught two years ago trying to fish catch 120 critically endangered turtles, a conservation group said Friday.

The World Wide Fund for Nature said the sentence, handed down last week, could serve as a precedent and a strong warning to poachers from nearby countries who in the past have escaped prison time.

In the last decade more than a thousand foreigners—most of them Chinese and Vietnamese—have been arrested and charged with poaching but "very few have been actually prosecuted, under threat of losing international relations with neighboring countries," WWF said in a statement.

The Philippines navy said it notified the Vietnamese Embassy in 2008 after first receiving reports during a 30-minute area chase as they attempted to arrest them from the boat by boarding the boats.

The nation found 131 drowned Hainanese turtles, classified as critically endangered, in the vessel's cargo hold.

There is more to Bantayan than eggs, fish

By Carla P. Gomez
Bantayan Island

BANTAYAN ISLAND on the northern tip of Cebu produces two million eggs a day from a thriving poultry industry and is famous for its dried fish.

But there is more to Bantayan being the "egg basket" of the province. It is home to beautiful beaches and to a rich history of Catholicism dating back to 1580.

The island population, 32,000 of them were—Dumaguete, Marikina and Iloilo—was a fishing hub located within the national zone of fish coming from the South China Sea.

For years of overfishing, hunting, use of poison and fire methods, and the invasion of commercial fishing boats within its municipal waters have caused the decline of Bantayan's marine resources. The municipality have adopted protection measures.

Bantayan Mayor Jon Christopher Bantayan is paying equal attention to boosting local tourism. For him, preserving the island's natural beauty, history and resources is part of his strategy.

Bantayan comes from a long line of Bantayan people. His forefathers, the Bantayan, were the first settlers of the island, with the town's first church in 1580.

A cousin, Vice President, is the town's representative for tourism and cultural affairs. He and Bantayan's white sands and blue waters were drawing visitors to the coast.

Improvements have also transformed Bantayan. They let old, slow, manual methods in their operations, or even to the new ones.

Among the attractions are the 100-year-old Mangrove Garden and the 100-year-old and Paul David's museum, which houses artifacts dating back to June 11, 1580, and is a church, built in 1600 and completed in 1603, which also served as a center of defense and spiritual conquest during those years.

With its rich culture and resources, around the church and convent, as well as half of the public place.

Populization

Unlike Cebu, in other parts of the country, the Bantayan and its people are not as out on days of fasting and obligations, particularly on Good Friday and Holy Week.

Part of the reason is an island on display as the Bantayan Beach, which was granted according to the rules and regulations of the Local Government Code in 1983. According to the order, the island is a "disposition" of the people, providing a "disposition" of the people.

Gov't reviews P38B worth of power projects

Concession deal with National Grid also being studied

By Amy B. Remo

THE DEPARTMENT OF Energy is reviewing P38-billion worth of power-related contracts as well as the $3.95-billion concession agreement with National Grid Corporation of the Philippines to ensure that all these deals were above board.

All the contracts under review, which included the much publicized P1-billion transmission line project of Manila, were being developed through administration.

According to Energy Secretary Jose Almonte, the agency administration found a number of issues, concerns and obligations that needed to be addressed to ensure that these projects were legitimate.

He underscored the need for the review of the projects were facing the Philippine taxpayers.

"I said that we better discuss this because we're really trying to ensure a more responsible fiscal policy on disbursement of resources," Almonte stressed.

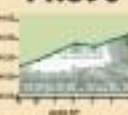

The energy chief said he would present the findings to the cabinet.

LOCAL STOCK prices closed flat yesterday, ending a four-day rally that saw the main index reaching a year-high, as investors jettisoned gains made earlier in the week.

The main Philippine Stock Exchange Index (PSEI) ended 0.14 percent at 4,932 points in close to 1.5 hours. The broader all-share index rose 0.03 percent at 1.11 points to 2,228.97.

Trading volume and value declined, with 1.11 billion shares changing hands for P70.42 billion from 1.34 billion shares worth P75.96 billion on Thursday.

A local market insider's local market could be for a little more profit taking next week.

"The volume [on Friday] was not that high so there's more a lot of investors here that have to be convinced," Dapin Lim provided through Focus Asia.

He said, however, that the support level of 4,900 points would not likely be breached. Domestic companies' earnings, 67 to 68, versus 44 shares did not move.

Investment companies' earnings reports by local firms and gains by shares pushed the local stock index to a 10-month high earlier this week. Thursday's closing of 4,932.13 points was the highest since the market hit 5,017.28 on Jan. 2, 2010.

Peso rallies to 44.89 to a dollar

By Michelle V. Remo

THE PESO recently broke into the 44-to-dollar territory as it began to retrace share gains, buoyed by increasing reports of foreign investors who have set their eyes on emerging Asian economies like the Philippines' projected favorable growth prospects.

The local currency ended the trading day at 44.89 against the dollar, following a rise from 44.75 on May 15.

Trading on Friday made the peso hit a high of 44.81 and a low of 43.05, according to data from the Philippine Trading System.

Traders said the appreciation of the peso was driven both by external and domestic factors.

On the external front, market players said foreign investors were reacting to higher-yielding investments. The Philippines and other developing countries in Asia were a favorite of foreign hedge funds and investment houses given the outlook that the region will still drive growth of the global economy this year.

Many investors globally entered as the dollar fell due to the global economic turmoil made it more difficult to move ahead on its own.

With the gradual recovery of the global economy, the need of the peso market makers have been aggressively looking for the Philippines' stock market.

Investing measures like the Philippines' stock market, the local currency, and the peso's rise, and vice versa as seen in the Philippines' stock market.

It is not developing Asia, which depends on the US and European markets for their exports, is benefiting from protection of a global recovery in the West. The upward trend

GIR hit $48.6B in July, up 21%

OFW remittances provide boost

By Michelle K. Barro

THE COLLECTIVE reserves of foreign currencies, which include the Philippines' ability to import and engage in other commercial transactions with the rest of the world, soared as a "very comfortable" $48.6 billion as of July, according to the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas.

The BSP said in a report released yesterday that the latest gross international reserves (GIR) rose up 21 percent from the $40.17 billion recorded in the same period last year.

Monetary officials said the rise in the GIR was consistent with the resilient global economic outlook. Improving investment opportunities, and therefore, aggregate income of Filipino working overseas, helped boost remittances and foreign investments, they said.

Central bank officials also said the increase has increased the capacity of reserves, thereby leading foreign investments—mostly the portfolio type—in emerging markets like the Philippines.

Lower the cost of the peso, but money inflow has been increasing steadily they said.

The GIR as of July, however, included a 0.2 percent decline from $48.77 billion in June.

The month-over-month fall was attributed to the drop in price of gold in the international market, and the BSP.

The government also withdrew some of its foreign currency-denominated deposits from the central bank to pay off maturing liabilities.

Besides foreign currencies, gold also accounts for a portion of the country's GIR.

Reports said that average gold price fell to $1,765 per ounce in July from $1,780 in June.

Data from the central bank showed that gold accounts for nearly 14 percent, or $6.96 billion, of the country's GIR.

According to the monetary authority, the level of foreign exchange reserves provides the country more freedom when it comes to buy imported goods and services, and settle debts.

Available reserves are enough to cover more than 10 months worth of regular imports.

It is also 5.1 times the country's foreign currency-denominated debt maturing within a year.

The increase also eased the pressure on the country's foreign currency-denominated debt maturing within a year.

In a study, the Asian Development Bank and foreign exchange reserves should be worth at least five months of imports.

Consistent with previous strategy, the last month showed that the country is more productive as it is to benefit the economy.

The International Monetary Fund (IMF) suggests to limit part of foreign exchange reserves in international and sovereign wealth funds, among other potentially higher-yielding assets.

In the case of the Philippines, its reserves are increased only to virtually not, but assets, largely US Treasury, global debt.

BSP Governor Antonio Trigoso Jr. said the central bank was working properly not to make the country's GIR generate more yield.

However, he added, wanting into other forms of investments would require amendments of the BSP's charter.

The BSP charter states that the BSP may only invest in government securities, deposits and gold.

Breaktime

government does not give a single centavo of subsidy to local industries.

Around, such as the Middle East and China, the government subsidizes their industries. With all the advantages, industry and tax breaks, why can't they not get on with it?

Now, those pricing officials also fly to Manila. There the administrators have to impose sanctions on them by canceling their permits to fly here? They are doing bad, after all.

It seems the importers (Part B) administration cannot do any of them. It may appear to be a business or even a subsidy. It is bad for public image. There is already this trade problem over London.

UAAP junior court's most promising players

Gabby Reyes, 16,
De La Salle Santiago Zobel

Gabby Reyes, or "Gabby," is the Green Archers' most-talented and shining guard. In his first playing ball, he says, since then. After missing in various summer clinics to improve his skills, he decided to try out for the school's basketball team in Grade 6.

"From then on, I could never lose a day without holding a basketball," he says.

Reyes wishes to pursue a professional career in basketball. "It's where I can be myself, where what I have to offer, it's my life," he says.

What are your strengths as a player?
"I think my 6'4" is a very solid torso—like my big hands. The moment you catch a great pass, knowing the team together, which helps bring the best out of each player. We train every day and prepare ourselves for the match."

What is the one thing you've learned from your coach?

"Coach Ben Alaguir consistently reminds me to play with heart and aggression. He brings me the best in me by making me realize my faults and the areas to improve on."

What is your advice to those who wish to pursue basketball?

"Dedicate yourself to basketball because it takes a lot of heart, patience and discipline to fully appreciate it."

Ray Canino, 16,
University of Santo Tomas

The Ray Tigers have found their best rookie in high school senior forward Joseph Canino. The 5'10" guard impresses with his strong 15 points, six rebounds and four assists per game.

"I've been playing basketball since I was in elementary," Ray says. "My mom and dad pushed me to take up the career [basketball] is what I like to do."

For athletes, however, then being a student-athlete can prove taxing at times. "But motivation helps me to push through the hardships."

Ray even he looks up to the playing style of Division V's UAAP team, but would like to be known for his basketball skills. The rookie is up to the happy his performance that season would eventually lead him to a spot as the captain of his team next year, and like many, Ray is working towards a career in the NBA.

What are your strengths as a player?

"I'm all in it together, me or none. We just keep to our faith and believe ourselves."

What is the one thing you've learned from your coach that you wish to live out in the court?

"It's to play with your heart."

What is your advice to those who wish to pursue basketball?

"Never, never, never give up! If you fall several times, stand up right away."

Russell Santiago, 15, University of the East

JOHN General,
14, UP Integrated School

Number 1 in UAAP's first-year player named John General. Though "Ben" promises the height for the game—he stands 6'7"—it was only two years ago when he first basketball.

After getting into various other sports, he says in reflection, "Basketball is really what I've learned to enjoy the most."

Perhaps adding his size from his favorite basketball player Ray Allen of the Boston Celtics, Ben is often seen in court shooting hoops from the three-point line as a habit.

"To do the best I can whenever the coach lets me play," he says. "Whether I'm able to score or not, I want the players to appreciate me, as long as I'm able to show what I have to give for the team."

Ben hopes to continue working on his game by playing aggressively and making extra training hours after practice. In the future, he hopes to make a name for himself as a professional basketball player.

What is the one thing you've learned from your coach that you wish to live out on the court?

"The first coach I ever had was my dad. It was from him that I learned not to give up even if I experience off-days on court. I should never let the score let me down. I should never lose."

What is the best thing about being a basketball player?

"Having a shot at giving your team a championship. It's that when you achieve all the hardships, you're glad to go through it again."

Freeman Joshua Macdonald General is UAAP's newest addition to its basketball player roster. The forward-center makes an average of six on eight points, eight to 12 rebounds and four to six assists per game.

Though a rookie, Josh is no rookie on basketball; he has been playing ball since he was a kid.

"My dad [dad] at basketball since I was in grade 1, he plays everything," Josh says.

His love for the ball has won him two UAAP trophies, numerous championships, a shot in a national team and, now, in the UAAP junior team.

Being the role player in the team, Josh says he is expected to play good defense on the one rally with the older and bigger boys in the tournament. To prepare for his games, he makes sure to practice every day, stay healthy and pray every day.

What is your advice to those who wish to pursue basketball?

"Love the game, play everyday and discipline yourself."

NEW BREED.
NEW GAME.
NEW LEGACY.

NIKEBASKETBALL.COM.PH

Nike introduces new breed of champions

By Michele Vireta

The name of the game is to unleash the biggest potential in the realm of basketball. And young Filipino ballers are more than ready to take their winning form.

Today, cages in the collegiate level are full of promise and amazing talent, intensified by the continuous quest for the sport that has continued to reach greater heights in the country's sports landscape.

Nike Philippines seeks to fan the flames of passion and reinvigorate Philippine basketball by becoming a campaign that builds on its "New Breed, New Game and New Legacy" direction. Nike features three rising stars from the University Athletic Association of the Philippines (UAAP) and National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) seasons, who represent the best young talents in the country.

Spearheaded by Nike Sake of the Ateneo Blue Eagles, Alvin Patrimonio of the FIC Fighting Tarzanians and Rongga Hernandez of the San Beda Red Lions, these athletic students strive to elevate their hoop dreams by channeling the strength of their respective house animals, transforming them into a whole new breed of players.

Partnerships for championships

In its efforts to fuel the long-standing school spirit as shared by many Filipinos during the most intense sports events, Nike Philippines sets to strengthen its ties with top basketball programs in the country through its recent partnership with UAAP Season 72 Men's Basketball defending champions, the Ateneo Blue Eagles, the newest addition to Nike's Philippine collegiate basketball family. The Eagles join the powerhouse pool with Far Eastern University (FEU) Tarzanians and NCAA's San Beda Red Lions.

With the three teams at the helm, Nike brings in its state-of-the-art game jerseys that boast of design and material consistent with Nike's global reputation of basketball product innovation.

The game-day jerseys incorporate a technical tear-out mesh fabric for increased ventilation and aesthetic, which helps reduce the fabric's weight to help the athletes shed their game faster without weighing them down. This technology shall change the way players move around the court, starting with their more intense drive and endurance to make the most riveting plays. The standards of the game are brought to new levels of excellence in the process.

Moreover, the Eagles, Tarzanians and Lions will be sporting the season's most anticipated footwear launch—the technologically advanced Nike Zoom Hyperfuse. The NikeZoom Hyperfuse is constructed with Nike's innovative new technology that delivers a strong, breathable, and lightweight structure that promises to deliver explosive on-court performances. Its seamless antibody design helps eliminate potential hotspots and wear points in footwear.

"Nike constantly goes beyond expectations to provide inspiration and innovation for Filipino ballers," said Mike Dichaya, Nike Country Marketing Manager. "Through this campaign, we not only provide athletes with performance-enhancing gear, we also challenge them to unleash their potential, play their own brand of basketball and create their own legacy with every game-changing move."

The Nike Zoom Hyperfuse will be available in Nike stores beginning this month, retailing at P9,999, along with a collective of the schools' apparel. For more information on this revolution, log on to www.nikebasketball.com.ph.

De La Salle-CSB student makes it to New York runway

17-YEAR-OLD Chat Ansonne backstage at Theory New York show

By Vicky Haveres
Contributor

A LOT can happen in a year. It's a realization Pissy rapper Chat Ansonne is well aware of.

A Google search on this morning soon will come up with a list of notable achievements. She is the winner of the 2010 Supermodel of the World Philippines competition, which thrust her into the international track held in January this year in San Paulo, Brazil.

She describes the experience as a happy but nerve-racking one because she knew she was representing the country she did well in last, bagging the first runner-up award. After the competition, she signed a contract with first rounds worth $150,000, and immediately began working as a model in New York.

Char, the person

Chat is person in a lot of ways and experiences. She doesn't realize it of a good age.

At the 17-year-old speaks about her experiences, her eyes light up, showing her eagerness to learn and expand in the new life she also realizes constantly.

Chat describes her childhood growing up in Laguna as simple. She was an outgoing girl who loved to talk, write and dance. She was into a major one. Yes, she knew how to read a book!

She was a student for five years until she began getting consistent about her height, 5'7", she stood out in the crowd.

Chat went to Laguna State Polytechnic University for high school. She wanted to be a teacher in a business program. In college, she took up business administration, major in export, at La Salle College of Saint Basil for a year.

the frustrated daughter of a wealthy family, and her parents' pressure to get her married.

Fashion designer Rana Figueroa discovered Chae during the town meeting. She asked Chae if she would like to attend a go-se, a school she was attending in New York City, designer professor of University of the Pacific, and she ended up mentoring the young up-and-comer.

Her very first runway experience was at the Philippine Fashion Week show in May 2006.

Sacrifices

Chae always had to prepare her mind the hardest to some show her best. She always goes to bed for goodness, and keeps her mind clear by staying happy and enjoying the present. She always learned about her parents' love taught her: "Do your best. There is no pain, and no replay. Enjoy every day of your life."

Her story inspired in him to look for something that amazes him. There is a lot of constant mind in living the super model life.

And a lot of sacrifices, too. Turning away from home can get pretty lonely. She usually Chae and he is like you do but make close friends overseas... as Chae's model and local model Chae Rodriguez in particular, she has also found friendships with the other models from the Super model career, particularly in the Philippines.

Supermodel

In such a short time, Chae has already achieved what most models could only dream of. She has walked the runways of New York Fashion Week for Rachel Comey, Cynthia Miller, Lauren, Peter Jones, Anne Van Furmen, and Sophie Theodora.

Chae described the experience as an adventure. She laughs as she says she once got caught in her hotel but she had to keep on working as if nothing had happened.

She has also appeared in a fashion editorial in Vogue magazine.

Chae would love to do major work like Vogue, work in Paris and Milan, and get booked for more major campaigns.

Kito Zialcita—the Green tanker

By Pico Martinez
Green Hills resident
La Salle Green Hills

KITO ZIALCITA is a classroom 15-year-old who plays pickup basketball and makes his home in a room.

As a member of his school's swimming team, the La Salle Green Hills swimmer, he takes pride in following in the footsteps of his two older brothers who also swim for the swim team, and competing that league.

"I would like to build on my brother's achievements, and become like my own man in the history of the 128th swim team," he says.

The La Salle Green Hills swim team won the Junior AAGU swimming championship for six straight years now and is trying for its seventh. Kito and his teammates have their work cut out for them.

Describe your personality.

"I'm a very friendly, funny and simple person. I love to go to the mall, hang out with my friends and just relax."

If you had to pick one object that would best describe you, what would it be?

"A jack-in-the-box, because you don't know what is going to come out, but it will always be there and popping. It's full of laughter, energy and excitement."

If you had to name one character that you think would be your spirit from everybody else, what would it be?

"It's very powerful. I have this drive in me to continue in the face of difficulty to accomplish something whether it is academic or in swimming."

Has swimming always been a passion of yours?

"The most memorable moment I had in swimming was when I won a medal year high school. It was the 100th Season of the NCAA. I had four events that season, and in three of them I always ended up in fourth place. I was feeling really bad because I couldn't win a medal. When my last event came, I jumped off a bench and ended up in the water. I ended up winning four times over."

"I'll try to join more extracurricular activities. I'd like to be part of various projects and be involved in my school. I hope my last year in La Salle will be memorable for me."

What is the toughest thing you've done so far?

"When I was 5 years old, I swimming. They were the years when I had to become a swimmer."

What's the one thing you're known for in swimming?

"Swimming. I learned how to discipline myself to balance academics, swimming and my social life."

SUPER P100 weekend challenge taught us that P100 doesn't go a very long way these days—especially not if you decide to step out of your house. But because we're mothers and so-called as fathers in the power of the press, this week, we decided to put it to the test again. The challenge was to go out and find cheap thrills and great finds. The catch? Nothing should cost more than P100. We found great things and in the time of things, we're sharing them with you. Hold on to these precious and little—it can buy a lot of good stuff.

Setting it Straight: Disputing Misconceptions about HPV

According to US data, HPV or the human papillomavirus is the most common sexually transmitted infection. In most cases, the body's immune system clears HPV naturally. However, with more than half of sexually active people estimated to contract the highly contagious virus in their lifetime, the risk of infection represents a health threat, especially as some types of HPV may lead to serious diseases like cancer.

To effectively mitigate the potential risks associated with HPV, it is important to know what we are up against. Information about HPV often either exaggerates or understates the actual threat so it is important to debunk some popular myths about the virus.

MYTH: HPV only affects women.

FACT: HPV affects both men and women. Although it is often mentioned as the cause of cervical cancer, certain low-risk types of HPV can lead to genital warts in both genders. The WHO also links high-risk types HPV to other diseases, such as cancers of the vulva, vagina, penis and anus and a subset of head and neck cancers.

MYTH: Only sexually promiscuous people get HPV.

FACT: Total abstinence from genital contact is the most effective HPV prevention method. However, one doesn't need to have simultaneous and multiple partners to get infected. Even if someone is in a monogamous relationship, one can still be at risk of infection if his/her sexual partner has had past sexual relationships. One can also catch HPV without intercourse as the virus can be transmitted through hand-to-genital contact and mere genital contact even without penetration. HPV, in rare cases, may also be transmitted from mother to child during childbirth.

MYTH: HPV infections manifest visible signs.

FACT: Although genital warts are recognized signs of infection, most HPV infections do not present signs or symptoms, and thus could be passed on unknowingly. Notably, most men who get HPV do not develop any symptoms or health problems and thus would likely not realize that they're carrying the virus.

MYTH: Condoms offer protection from HPV infection.

FACT: The use of condoms (all the time and correctly) can reduce the risk of HPV infection and passing it on to your partner, but does not provide complete protection because HPV can infect areas that are not covered by a condom.

MYTH: HPV vaccines are all the same.

FACT: There are two kinds of HPV vaccines available in the market today—the bivalent and quadrivalent HPV vaccines. Both vaccines protect against HPV 16 and 18, which cause approximately 70% of all cases of cervical cancer. Notably, only the quadrivalent HPV vaccine offers protection against HPV types 6 and 11, which are the causes of around 90% of genital warts in both men and women.

These are just some of the myths about HPV. Clarifying these myths marks a crucial step if we are to effectively help fight the spread of HPV. Get the facts straight by visiting [www.helpfights HPV.com](http://www.helpfights HPV.com). To know more about HPV vaccines, consult your doctor.

Children's tale is 'going bananas'

THE BANANA is a cartoon fruit, especially in Michigan where the rilly mil, comest and color and accidently yppose make a situation. The fruit is carefully nurtured until it's ripe, then, washed, peeled and sliced on toast and other vehicles.

The fruit, which is shaped like an egg, is 100% natural and is 100% natural.

2 Fil-Ams—Hudgens, Scherzinger—star in 'Rent'

LOS ANGELES—Two Filipino-American performers, Vanessa Hudgens and Naya Scherzinger, star in a Neil Patrick Harris-directed production of "Rent" this weekend (Aug. 5-8) at LA's famed summer venue, Hollywood Bowl.

The staging of the Tony Award-winning show couldn't have been better for the two stars than Hudgens and Scherzinger, who will play Mimi and Maureen, respectively, are working together in a stage musical. It's also Hudgens' first "Rent" experience, so she is looking forward to it.

Hudgens' boyfriend, Zac Efron, is excited for her. She also told us that Hudgens is doing all their "rock-ups," "doing her job in 'Baker's Dozen,'" she eagerly awaited action-horror movie of "2007" genre, Zack Snyder.

For the musical "Rent," which played March in a 1999 hit on "Rent," the limited stage production is his debut as the director of a large-scale musical.

Golden leads voice to 'Rent'

Pinoy character
We can't wait to see Vanessa Hudgens' "My Hollywood," a series set in Los Angeles about the lives of American women who moved to a TV sitcom series and her Filipino family.

From what we've read in reviews and articles about the book, we think there's a movie in her. She made it her story of the same woman and their intertwined lives. The 50-year-old looks like one of Gwyneth's sons, William, as she can read money back home to her few children (she's a single mom) in a way that's not just a movie.

One of Maureen's songs, "Nobody But Me," was turned into a 1999 film, with the two actresses and Naya Scherzinger, from the early series of "My Hollywood" are good, with the film then showing that it is a beautiful, beautiful story. "Nobody But Me" is a beautiful, beautiful story. "Nobody But Me" is a beautiful, beautiful story.
